"Ink Spots" in Coleman March 19

Coleman Legion, Branch No. 9, who are sponsoring the internationally famous "Ink Spots" in a one evening performance at the Horace Allen high school auditorium, have announced that plans are now complete for the show of the year.

The performance will get underway at 8 p.m. sharp on Tuesday, March 19 with well known comedian Walter Blaik as master of ceremonies. A novelty feature number will be presented by popular Trudy O'Shea.

A sale of advance tickets is being conducted by the Legion to ensure seating for the large attendance that is expected. Ample parking space has been provided for on the school grounds.

Advance tickets may be purchased at the Chinook Bowling Lanes, Pincher Creek; Skiff's Hardware, Bellevue; Aldo's Upholstery, Blairmore; Vet's Insurance, Coleman, and from Earl Taber Insurance Agencies for Michel-Natal. Admission has been set at $3 for adults, $1.50 for high school students, and 50¢ for children under 12 if accompanied by parents.

The internationally famous "Ink Spots" are known in nearly every small village and large city in the United States, Africa, Australia, Japan, Hong Kong, the continent of Europe. The Ink Spots' recordings have been sold through the world, and they have performed to capacity crowds everywhere. They held many times in New York City at the Paramount Theatre and the Strand Theatre as well as the still popular Apollo Theatre. In Chicago the Ink Spots appeared at the Chicago and Regal Theatres plus the Chez Paree and many other night clubs.

The Ink Spots have had many hit records and record albums throughout the years. Their theme song is "If I Didn't Care", which must have sold over 3,000,000 records up to date. Many other name artists have recorded the song in recent years and it has become a hit over and over again. The Ink Spots are also mainly responsible for dozens of other hit songs such as "Maybe", "It's a Sin To Tell a Lie", "We Three", "Whispering Grass", "Do Not Worry", "I'd Climb the Highest Mountain", to name just a few. They have also recorded over 25 record albums throughout the years. The record albums are sold over the world and in almost all record stores and department stores in the USA.

Throughout the years there have been several changes in the Ink Spots personnel, since the original Hoppy Jones died. They have become more progressive by adding some Spiritual, Jazz and Poplar songs to their repertoire.

The Ink Spots also entertain for the younger generation at high schools, colleges and proms. For these special occasions, they play for dancing, and occasionally perform some popular Rock 'n Roll numbers. The Ink Spots still feature most all of their famous hit songs in every performance. "If I Didn't Care" is known to them as "the money song", which was their first smash hit song, which also started the ball rolling into greater fame and fortune. This song is featured in every show, for which the audience applauds loudly.

The Ink Spots have been featured on many of the top television and radio shows from coast to coast. They have also been featured in several motion pictures, with many other leading stars of the day. Their most popular picture was "Pardon My Sarong", with Abbott and Costello.

The Ink Spots are also well-known for the honey-sweet unique song styling, whereby they interject talk and patter in a bassy voice in the middle of a song, while the tenor singer hums or sings a high falsetto in the background. When the talk and patter is done the tenor once again interrupts with his voice for the finale of each ballad. They usually have as part of the group, a bass player, who also sings bass, a guitar player who usually sings baritone, a high pitched tenor and a second tenor voice.

This comprised the Ink Spots. The Ink Spots are still considered to be a top entertainment attraction. They are usually an old standby among old-timers as well as making a hit attraction with the younger generation.

Victim of Muscular Dystrophy

Debby Selmes is one of the many young victims of muscular dystrophy in Canada who are patiently awaiting word of a cure. Medical science is slowly gaining ground in its world-wide assault on this genetic disease — one of the last of the killing diseases of childhood. Of the eleven nations that have set up research organizations to combat MD, the Muscular Dystrophy Association of Canada is second only to the American group in the size and scope of its research program. — photo by Herb Knott.

Bodies Recovered from Crowsnest Lake

Scuba divers from Calgary were dragging the Crows Nest lake Monday for the bodies of three men trapped in a car which plunged into the lake sometime Saturday evening.

The men were identified as Dennis Gallia, 19 of Sparwood, Gordon Fairclough, 20 of Nelson and Douglas Latka of Elk Valley.

Ron Fife of Coleman, a department of highways employee saw five broken guard rails at the east end of the lake a round midnight Saturday.

Checking the same area Sunday, Joe Cartwright of Blairmore noticed skid marks leading to the broken rails.

The track ended at the edge of the lake which drops off sharply at that point.

The department of highways employee said he could see nothing in the lake. The water is deep in that area.

RCMP officials at Blairmore called in scuba divers from Calgary to check the lake. They began diving operations Monday morning, and the car and the bodies of the three youths were recovered later the same day.

Hilton Pharis Heads Trophy Club

Hilton Pharis, Terry Weber and Steve Kubasek, all of Lundbreck, were elected as president, vice-president and secretary-treasurer respectively to head the Willow Tree Trophy Club at the annual meeting held recently.

William Michalsky, a licensed guide from Lundbreck, showed a number of scenic slides and also slides of a hunting trip for Desert Bighorn Sheep in Arizona.

During the meeting various reports were given and a committee was elected to attempt to boost the membership to the 500 mark this year.

All sportsmen wishing to participate in the club's seasonal activities are urged to get their membership tickets now. The tickets may be purchased through secretary Steve Kubasek at Lundbreck or many other outlets in southern Alberta.

E. M. O. Planned Disaster Successful

A flesh searing flash of white light, followed by screaming, building wrecking wind turned a local school into a bedlam of injured and dead students here today as the Crows Nest Pass Emergency Measures Organization conducted a planned nuclear disaster manoeuvre.

Working in co-operation with the Crows Nest Pass EMO, police, fire departments, local citizens, and high school students simulated a life-like disaster that saw over 30 seriously injured students taken into the Crows Nest Pass Municipal Hospital where staff doctors and nurses took over.

Injuries included amputated fingers, severely burned patients, others with intestines hanging out, fractured limbs and wild, hysterical patients that gave hospital attendants a good chance to exercise their abilities.

To make the events more realistic J. Robertson of the Alberta EMO, Miss G. E. Hogan, Reg. N., nursing consultant, Alex Ballantine, store officer and A. W. Mann, acting director of the Emergency Health Services, did an expert job of applying make-up to produce life-like looking wounds on the school students.

The 50 students involved were from the Horace Allen high school in Coleman, and the Isabelle Sellion high school in Blairmore, who took the part of the patients, and stretcher bearers.

The entire operation was planned and conducted by Crows Nest Pass EMO co-ordinator, F. J. Penegely of Bellevue; Joe Bassoo and Tyse Vastenhouw of Blairmore; Geo. Wait of Blairmore, John Binda and Fire Chief Henry Zak, Coleman.

The Blairmore town shop was used as the central point where the students were made up and from where four local station wagons and vans were converted into ambulances to rush the injured to the hospital.

Personnel at the hospital set up emergency wards and examining physicians directed the placement of the injured to the various wards.

The Edmonton officials stated that the exercise was extremely well handled and commended the young people of the schools for their splendid co-operation and realistic performance of their parts.

Cheen Club Executive Formed

A number of members of the Cheen Club and a group of adults met recently to form a Cheen executive and an advisory board of governors to oversee a "coffee house" being planned by the young people.

Named to the advisory board were Mrs. Pauline Grigel of Bellevue, Arnold Habeller and Mrs. Muriel Russell of Coleman, and Ernie Luini, Gus Erikson and Vern Decoux of Blairmore.

The coffee house executive comprise president, Gordon Radford; vice-president, John Rae, and second vice-president, Donna Brynski, all of Blairmore; secretary, Esme Malanchuk and treasurer, Maureen Payne, both of Coleman.

A discussion was held on policies and regulations to be adopted by the club and a schedule is to be drafted and brought before the advisory board and the Cheen executive for study and ratification.

The "coffee house" is located above Simpsons-Sears mail order office and is being cleaned up and remodelled by the young people. When in operation the premises will be under supervision at all times and will provide a meeting place for young people where get-togethers and social events can be enjoyed.

Grant Hall Heads Family Life Centre

Grant Hall of Blairmore, was elected as chairman of the Family Life Centre at the group's annual meeting held recently.

The organization was formerly known as the Pincher Creek - Crows Nest Pass Family Service Bureau.

Vice-chairman of the group is Morden McNeil of Hillcrest, and secretarial duties will be assumed by Mrs. Lillie Price of Bellevue.

The board of directors, representative of all areas served by the organization, includes:

Rev. Lucien J. Robert of Bellevue, Doran Flechard of Blairmore, Jim Gibos of Coleman, Hector Lemire of Cowley, Mrs. Audrey Painter of Frank, Gordon McNeil of Hillcrest, Dr. M. Hodgson of Pincher Creek, and members at large are Cliff Noble of Coleman and Earl Clarke and Gordon Reeves of Pincher.

A Nurse In Every Home

Who needs Nursing training, that is. What with all the medical health programs planned or already in existence, there hardly seems to be any point in learning to treat illness in the home. Might as well check into the hospital at the first sign of a sniffle, ache or pain (after all, it's practically free, isn't it?)

This sounds logical until one realizes that these new services are the very things that are going to stretch already overtaxed hospital facilities to near the breaking point. And whether the services are free or not won't matter very much, if you can't get into a hospital because there's already a waiting list as long as a $50 roll of surgical gauze.

The recent report of the Royal Commission on Health Services has predicted a need for ever-increasing numbers of trained personnel in the health field. The Commission emphasized that individuals and families will have to assume the responsibility of caring for themselves in all but cases of serious illness.

In addition, Emergency Health Services has stated that in case of disaster, one person in every home, proficient in Home Nursing, is an absolute necessity.

It is with these very real needs in mind, that St. John Ambulance has recently stepped up its Home Nursing program. Last year over 6,000 Canadians took this training. Miss Margaret M. Hunter, Reg. N., Chief Nursing Officer for St. John Ambulance, says the Association is more concerned about patient care in the home today than ever before.

"Although new hospitals are being built," she says, "there are still not enough to meet the needs of our population. Therefore, it is most important that we conserve hospital beds for those who need them most, the acutely ill."

Miss Hunter says she hopes the new "Patient Care in the Home" manual published by St. John will stimulate increased interest in home nursing in Canada.

An easy-to-read, information-packed supplement to the Association's Home Nursing courses, it tells the homemaker how to do everything from preparing an ice pack to coping with emergency childbirth.

It is filled with simple procedures that make caring for an invalid at home easier for both the patient and the homemaker.

For example, did you know that pills for small children should be crushed between two spoons? that beds in the home cause discomfort to both patient and homemaker because they are too low and that raising the bed just a few inches with wooden blocks or tin cans filled with sand, will make a big difference in convenience and comfort?—that a simple cardboard cradle made from a box with two sides removed will protect the patient from bedding which can weigh very heavily on the feet after a few days?

The manual is available to the general public through local St. John branches, but Miss Hunter emphasizes that it is meant to supplement, not supplant, the Home Nursing course.

A St. John Home Nursing course takes two hours a week for eight weeks. It helps a mother protect herself and her family against accidents; teaches her to recognize early signs of illness; shows how to prevent the spread of infection, and teaches her simple nursing skills.

Miss Hunter points out there are "very good personal reasons why young mothers and homemakers should have a knowledge of home nursing skill". She adds, "Many patients, particularly children and older people, seem to respond more readily to care in their own beds".

For recuperating from illness, after all, there's no place like home.

Arthritis Can Be Controlled

Arthritis, by definition, means inflammation of the joint or joints. There are many kinds of arthritis, some of which tend to produce disability and some which do not. The Canadian Medical Association reports.

Very seldom does arthritis produce any degree of permanent disability. Statistics show that even in these instances where arthritis advances to the stage where it is threatening to cripple, adequate medical care will prevent crippling in five out of six cases.

When a patient appears in a doctor's office complaining of pain in a joint, the doctor will attempt to determine what kind of arthritis is causing the pain, and how far it has advanced.

For some kinds of arthritis — gout is one — there is a specific treatment that will cure, leaving no disability. In others there may be a threat of disability, but proper management will prevent crippling in over 80 per cent of cases.

The C.M.A. says, the vast majority of cases do not fall into either of these two groups. In most cases the doctor will know that the attacks of arthritis will be short-lived, will not recur, and will leave no disability. It is sometimes hard to be sure which ones will progress, recur and ultimately threaten to disable, but his efforts can help prevent the disease from progressing.

FINAL STAGE:

Appearance of acrid smelling brown powder.

WHAT TO DO:

If you have old film in your possession, whether it shows signs of decomposition or not, act at once! Remove film very gently from any building and any source of heat.

Do Not Place It In The Garbage or Attempt To Destroy It Personally.

More And Better Qualified Teachers In 1967-68

Letter Urges Tagging For Clean-up Beer Bottles

Alberta's teaching force is predicted to reach an all-time high of 19,300 teachers in the 1967-68 school year.

Of the total 19,300 teachers, about one in three is expected to have at least one degree, indicating that today's teacher has more preparation than teachers had in past years.

Teachers are also better paid. The Department of Education reports the average teacher salary in the 1966-67 school year was $6,643, up $484 over the previous year. Total salaries of teachers in public and separate schools in systems in Alberta amounted to $121,661,000 in 1966-67, up $15,836,000 over 1965-66. Forty-five teachers were reported to receive $15,000 or more in 1966-67. Teachers are paid according to teacher training and teaching experience.

The increase in the Alberta teacher salary bill can be attributed to three major factors. There were about 130 more teachers in Alberta's elementary and secondary schools last year than a year earlier. Rates of pay went up by about seven per cent from 1965-66 to 1966-67. The average amount of training increased slightly, leading to higher salary placement.

Teachers earned their average salary of $6,643 in 1966-67 in 200 working days. This contrasts with the 235 days expected of most employees working a five-day week with three weeks vacation and ten holidays per year.

By legislation teachers are guaranteed 20 days of sick leave per year. Pension benefits for teachers are generous and cost school boards and the provincial government an amount equal to about 6 per cent per year, an estimated $400 per teacher in 1966-67.

it to become law." I will admit you are right, but show me any worthwhile enterprise that does not cost something.

There is a fine of $100 for littering the highways. Right? I have already mentioned the system of numbering the cartons to be enforced, by giving each aggressor the full penalty of the law. That would be $260 to help defray the court costs, etc.

I have contacted some of the peace officers as well as the vendor stores. They are in favor of the project and suggest I present the plan to the Alberta Liquor Control Board and to our premier, the Hon. E. C. Manning.

True Canadians and the press, in fact people in most every walk of life, have worthwhile Centennial projects. Right? This is mine. I sincerely hope it will become yours. The sooner we swing into action, the better. Please, may I have your co-operation.

COLEMAN JOURNAL

New Collection Of Photographs

A new collection of photographs of early days in Alberta, on loan from the Glenbow Alberta Institute in Calgary, is presently on display in the Provincial Museum.

The collection deals with segments of early life in the province, starting with the first Royal Northwest Mounted Police unit in 1874. An early railway engine, and a scene depicting the construction of the Canadian Pacific Railway in 1886, are pictured, as are other modes of transportation up to 1924. A number of photographs of early fire-fighting crews and equipment in Calgary are side by side with pictures of early newspaper establishments in southern Alberta.

The Calgary Stampede of 1928 is pictured, with one photograph of particular interest, of the Hon. R. Bennett and Senator Pat Burns. Turner Valley Oilfield was active at that time, and the final two photographs in the collection depict this busy period.

Museum personnel are kept busy with a steady stream of visitors. Sunday, February 11th was the record day so far, with a total of 4758 persons. Over 47,000 have toured the Museum since its opening with over 12,000 during the first two weeks of February. The Friday evening 9:00 o'clock closing has proved to be very successful and popular, with many small groups and clubs, as well as individuals, taking advantage of the extended hours.

A large number of school groups have toured the Museum, and teachers and group leaders are reminded that arrangements should be made in advance for tours, so that guides may be in attendance and groups can be directed in such a manner as not to collide with other touring parties.

How Safe Is Your Heating Equipment?

(B. A. E. Bridges, Alberta Fire Commissioner)

This is the season of the year when heating equipment is working to full capacity. There is all the more reason therefore to make a critical examination of heating equipment and to assist in this we would now like to publish a heating equipment quiz.

When reading this quiz and giving honest answers, it should be noted that any answer other than "yes" should cause immediate alarm and should be the cue to doing whatever is necessary to follow safe practices that will be clearly indicated by reading the heating equipment quiz.

—Have your stoves, furnace, chimney and smoke pipes been checked and cleaned where necessary within the past year?

—Are furnaces and stoves at least 18 inches from any exposed woodwork?

—Do any stove pipes run through attics or concealed spaces?

—Are smoke pipes, when running through combustible partitions, protected by a double ventilating metal thimble?

—Do you prohibit the use of gasoline or kerosene for starting or quickening fires in your home?

—Does your fireplace have a metal screen in front of it to prevent sparks from flying onto the carpet or furniture?

—Are all portable heaters of a type listed by the Canadian Standards Association?

—Is your portable oil heater always placed on a level floor to ensure proper operation?

—Do you always refill the fuel tanks of portable heaters out of doors and in the daylight?

—If you use a wick-type portable oil heater do you trim the wick and clean it regularly?

—Do you always turn your portable oil heater out upon retiring at night or when moving it from one part of the house to another?

You should be safe from heating equipment fires if you can answer "yes" to all 11 questions.

Chest X-Ray

Everybody agrees that chest x-rays are essential in the detection of early tuberculosis, early lung cancer and other silent, serious lung and heart troubles. Early detection is vital because the chances of controlling or correcting these conditions are greater when treatment can be started early.

There is no question about the value of chest x-rays — but how often should they be taken?

The Canadian Medical Association says, every teen-ager should have a chest x-ray and tuberculin test—before he leaves school. If these are negative, then there need be no more chest x-rays until age 40. However, a tuberculin test should be taken annually. If the tuberculin test is positive then a chest x-ray should be taken annually.

At age 40, chest x-rays every year should begin. The hazard of tuberculosis, lung cancer and other chest disease becomes much greater at this stage in life — particularly for men.

The C.M.A. says that among older men, who are addicted to smoking cigarettes, one out of every 300 develops lung cancer.

Our Home Management Specialist, Mrs. Edna Clarke, recently put out a newsletter which had this to say about the new consumer credit laws:

"Somebody once said that if the masses have one quality in common it's a complete indifference to being 'hooked'."

Until the Albert Credit and Loan Agreement Act became law on November 1, 1967, the masses did not have much choice when it came to borrowing cash or financing consumer goods. The lender or retailer could charge whatever interest rate the traffic would bear. And the customer knew precious little about what credit really cost him.

The whole business is out in the open now. The terms of this new legislation have profound meaning for anybody who ever bought a fur coat "on time", or floated a loan from a financial institution for a car.

Advertising indoctrinates people with the modern concept that those who wait until they have cash before they buy, are tarred with the brush of stupidity. Retail outlets rarely shriek, "Don't just stand there, CHARGE something!"

So along with this "friendly" persuasion to use our credit, the financial and retail outlets are only well going to "fess up" and tell us what it costs.

Terms of the Credit and Loan Agreement Act:

1—Applies to cash loans as well as to financial purchases.

2—Lenders must use standard procedures to calculate and disclose true annual interest rate.

3—Carrying charges must be expressed in dollars and cents, as well as simple annual interest rate.

4—Borrower must be informed as to amount and frequency of payments.

5—Down payment and total amount loaned must be stated.

6—All other costs of goods, including transportation and installation charges, must be stated.

7—Extra charges to the borrower for not meeting payments must be stated in percentage per annum.

8—Goods financed must be clearly described.

The Act does not regulate interest charges. It does enable people to shop for credit in full knowledge of cost differences.

It's up to us to spread the good word everywhere. Alberta is in the vanguard when it comes to legislation protecting the consumer. A giant step forward and something to crow about.

tic, basements, cupboards and even in archives, presenting a serious explosion and fire hazard.

The Chief Inspector of Theatres has issued a warning to all persons who have in their possession reels or parts reels of old movie film either 28mm or 35mm in width and made before 1948. This film is dangerous, and should be destroyed. The warning does not apply to 8mm or 16mm home movie film.

It is almost certain that all film in the 28mm and 35mm sizes made before 1948 is printed on base film stock. Usually, but not always, this film is identified by the word "nitrate" printed along one edge at one foot intervals.

Regardless of age or condition, all nitrate film is highly combustible. In fact, combustion is so rapid that, in an enclosed space, it almost always results in a violent explosion. The fumes of burning nitrate are very toxic and usually fatal if breathed into the lungs. It has the ability to generate its own oxygen, as it burns, and will continue to burn after being immersed in water.

Due to a continuing reaction between the chemicals used in manufacture and processing and the humidity and temperature of the air, nitrate film will not remain stable for long periods of time. Spontaneous combustion can occur any time after the start of decomposition.

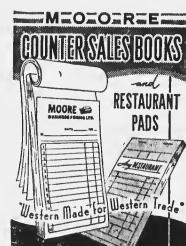

Decomposition begins with a yellow discoloration, fading of the image and undue brittleness. At later stages, the emulsion becomes sticky and the layers of film may weld together in a frothing mass with a disagreeable odor. The final stage is when an acrid smelling brown powder appears.

Significant quantities of nitrate film have been appearing lately in donations to museums, in the residue of estates, and from private sources.

Anyone with old film in his possession should immediately, gently and carefully, remove it from any building and source of heat. DO NOT PLACE IT IN WITH GARBAGE OR ATTEMPT TO DESTROY IT PERSONALLY. An operator in a city incinerator was badly burned and the incinerator damaged not long ago when a load of garbage contained an unnoticed quantity of nitrate film.

A letter or phone call to K. D. Kremer, Chief Inspector of Theatres, Room 127, Natural Resources Building, Edmonton, will bring an inspector to identify the type of film and, if necessary, arrange for its destruction in a safe manner.
